The methods and assumptions used to evaluate the fair value of each class of financial instruments are as follows:

- (1) Short-term financial instruments are stated at their carrying value on the balance sheet date. Because the maturity date of these instruments is very close to the balance sheet date, it is reasonable that their carrying amounts are equal to their fair values. Those in such category include cash and cash equivalents, notes and accounts receivable, margin deposits, other receivable operations guarantee deposits, clearing and settlement funds, refundable deposits, futures traders' equity, notes and accounts payable, income tax payable, other payables and accrued pension liabilities.
- (2) Quoted market prices, if available, are utilized as estimates of the fair value of financial assets and liabilities. If no quoted market prices available for the financial instruments, the fair value has been derived based on pricing models. A pricing model incorporates all factors that market participants would consider in setting a price. The Company uses discount rates equal to the prevailing rates of return for financial instruments with similar characteristics. The characteristics involve debtor's credit standing, residual period of contracted fixed interest rates, residual period of principal repayment and currency of payment.

3. As of June 30, 2009 and 2008, the fair value of the financial instruments, which were based on quoted market value in active market or pricing model, were as follows:
